For information on making a gift to the MSF program, go to http://www.cba.ufl.edu/alumni/support.asp

If your employer participates in a corporate gift matching program, the impact of your gift on UF could be doubled or even tripled. Many companies match gifts from spouses and retirees as well. All gifts made to Hough Hall are eligible for matching funds from the Courtelis Facilities Enhancement Challenge Grant Program, which supports building projects by offering a dollar for dollar match, doubling the impact of your gift.

Dear Alumni and Friends of the MSF Program,

As we start the Spring term in Gainesville, twenty students in the Class of 2008 have already accepted job offers: more than two-thirds of the class. As detailed at the end of this report, the jobs were outstanding. The students landed at really good firms in a year where hiring was down a bit. A group of May graduates will head to New York to work for firms like Bear Sterns, Citigroup and Merrill Lynch while three students will join the analyst class at Raymond James and four will join the analyst class at Wachovia Securities. All in all I was very pleased.

While we must always work hard to improve the program and there are challenges on the horizon, I feel like the program has reached the “tipping point” discussed in popular books. Past MSF graduates have performed well in their positions. These graduates along with other Gators in their firms have worked hard to get these firms to come back for more students. The impact of setting a few finance professionals in Gator Nation in motion has resulted in a geometric growth of opportunities for our students. So much of the success of the program is due to the efforts of alumni.

These placement successes in turn have resulted in a deeper pool of highly qualified applicants for the program.

Regards and thank you for your support,

David T. Brown

A Record Number of MSF Students Received Internship Opportunities

With a guiding hand from the Gator Nation, these students had Wall St. internships summer, 2007.

- Lisa Reimondy obtained an internship with Bear Stearns followed by an immediate placement offer. Lisa has since visited Gainesville, spending a Sunday morning mentoring MSF Combined Degree students.
- Jesse Rosenblum interned at JPMorgan Private Bank. He will return when he completes the MSF Program this spring.
- Yaron Naymark’s Citigroup Capital Markets internship resulted in his acceptance of a full time offer to begin when he graduates in May.
- Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) conducts the nation’s premiere summer internship program for talented undergraduate students of color. Kyle Morabito became the fourth MSF student to secure an SEO internship. Kyle will return to Merrill Lynch to their sales and trading (Global Markets) once he completes his MSF degree.
- Eddie Sarrine continued his previous summer’s internship with Bramwell Capital Management, New York, NY.
- Matthew Novack interned in New York City in JPMorgan’s Tax Exempt area.
- Alejandro Piekarewicz worked at SunTrust Robinson Humphrey as a summer Client Management Corporate Finance Analyst in Atlanta, GA.

MSF students Collin Mings and Jason Lazarus served as year long interns with the University of Florida Investments Company (UFICO) which manages the University of Florida Endowment. Collin will join Raymond James in St. Petersburg upon graduation. Jason will join Intrepid Capital Management in Jacksonville.

Industry Influence Shines on the MSF Program

Carlos Herrero, regular member of the CFA Society of Jacksonville, MSF ’04, visited campus in 2006 to talk to students about the CFA. In 2006-2007, at least seven MSF students received CFA scholarships from the CFA Societies of Jacksonville and Miami.

This spring, Visiting Assistant Professor, John Banko, Ph.D., is leading a course designed to prepare students registered for the CFA exam. Over the course of the term, they will explicitly cover all of the Learning Outcome Statements and information required to pass the exam. Through his association with the CFA Society, Dr. Banko was granted a pair of CFA scholarships to extend to students participating in the course.

Taking time out while visiting campus on a recruiting trip, Steve DeRose, Associate for Wachovia Securities, MSF 2004, gave upcoming MSF students first hand stories, the good and the bad, from his two years as an analyst. His candid accounts only fueled students’ ambition. His insight into interviewing practices, hiring timelines, MSF curriculum advantages and job expectations offered a rare opportunity for students to question, listen, learn and network. MSF students were well prepared for the job market as evidenced by the placements this fall.

Adjunct Professor Carolyn Takeda-Brown, PhD and Craig Cohen, Managing Partner, Proprietary Capital, LLC hosted a six week tutorial for MSF students on how to use the Bloomberg terminal. Professor Takeda-Brown facilitated the weekly sessions while Craig Cohen joined the sessions virtually from his office in Denver. These sessions were just the beginning. Several students then used the University of Florida’s terminal to get Bloomberg certified. Prior to one of his fall interviews, Michael Contreras, MSF 2008, was found in the library combing through Bloomberg, putting himself steps ahead of his competition.

The Warrington College of Business fund raising staff is actively soliciting donations to fund a Financial Markets Data Room, complete with multiple Bloomberg terminals for Hough Hall.
